

Gestational Diabetes – Oct 31, 2011

During pregnancy -- usually around the 24th week -- many women develop gestational diabetes. A diagnosis of gestational diabetes doesn't mean that you had diabetes before you conceived, or that you will have diabetes after giving birth. But it's important to follow your doctor's advice regarding blood glucose (blood sugar) levels while you're planning your pregnancy, so you and your baby both remain healthy.

What is Gestational Diabetes?

Learn when and how gestational diabetes may affect your pregnancy.

How to Treat Gestational Diabetes

Prevent pregnancy complications by beginning treatment quickly.

Talk With Others

Share your experience with others living with gestational diabetes in our message boards.

Diabetes 24/7

Use this free online tool to track and organize your diabetes management and treatment plan.

Source: <http://www.diabetes.org/diabetes-basics/gestational/?loc=DropDownDB-gestational>